They wish to publicly thank the kind neighbors and their physician, Dr. Cunningham for the assistance rendered them during the trying period of their daughter's illness.

While the family were at church Sunday week, Postmaster Tyree's kitchen was entered, and three loaves of bread and a jar of peach preserves were stolen. Suspicion fell on a certain colored boy, and a short time after the loss was discovered and before it was known outside of the family circle, the darkey came along. He was questioned thus: "How did those peaches taste you stole out of my kitchen?" "Hope I may die if I took any peaches out of your kitchen, or light bread either!"

THE GOLDEN STORE.

H. C. Simms, the senior partner of the noted law firm of Simms & Enslow of Huntington, was in Marlinton a good portion of last week. He is the president of the Greenbrier Valley Railroad. His business here was to pay for the right of way below Marlinton. This was done by giving the parties "C. & O. vouchers." These are bills against the company, and when receipted and signed by an attorney for the C. & O., which position the firm of Simms & Enslow holds, become sight drafts on the C. & O. R. R. They were eyed a little dubiously by some of the landowners, but the new bank cashed them promptly.

A good deal of prospecting has been done on Cheat Mountain near Clover Lick this year for silver, and word comes that the mine is really discovered at last. The prospector has found an old shaft on the mountain side and other evidences of the mine being worked at some prehistoric time. The legend goes that near this point Moses Moore was captured by the Indians was left under guard and the main body of Indians went away, were gone several hours and returned with metal out of which they made bullets. Then an old pioneer named Lamb was lost and discovered the mine and brought away specimens in his ammunition pouch. He worked it up but could never go back to the place. It is said that where the discovery was made there are numerous chippings of flint showing where the Indians had worked.

The Governor Takes a Hatfield.

Dock Ellis and Elias Hatfield met with Winchester, indulged in a cussing match, fired one round, with the result that Ellis fell dead and Hatfield walked across the line into Kentucky to find congenial company. His friends wired to Governor Atkinson that he would surrender to him in person. The Governor went to Mingo county and stopped over night at a Hatfield's and there was a reunion the next morning of the Hatfields. "Devil Anse" was shot at a mark. Then Elias, who is "Devil Anse's" son, came in and said all he wanted was protection. That is what the Governor believes in and the young man was placed in jail. Such ready killers ought not to be at large any way.

There is nothing in the report that Hatfield tried to negotiate for a pardon if he needed it.

Died.

At Marlinton, July 13th, 1899, Miss Ora Bunker Kincaid, in the 22nd year of her age. Her parents were Mr Anthony B. and Mrs Mary H. Kincaid, who recently came to Marlinton, from Morris Hill, Alleghany County, Va., and was born September 12, 1877. Her death was caused by heart failure after a severe illness of but a few hours duration.

About three years since she united with the Greenwood Presbyterian church, on Jacksons River, during the ministry of Rev E. P. Rodgers, and she lived a very exemplary youthful Christian life. This young lady was one of those engaging characters of whom it may be truthfully said none knew her but that held her in highest personal esteem and confidence. With common consent her friends testified that but few young people ever make their presence so needed for the comfort and happiness of home as this lamented daughter and sister rendered herself by her devoted services. Her appearance in death impressively recalled the Savior's words, "The maid is not dead but sleepeth." Her remains were taken to Greenbrier and buried at Falling Springs. W. T. P.

J. R. Trotter, Supt.

JAMES W. WARWICK, Esq.,
My Dear Sir: Please permit me to say in reply to your letter of the 19th instant, that the law is very explicit with reference to institute attendance. No excuse for non-attendance at institute can be granted except by the Board of Examiners, and any board of education or trustees that hire a teacher without a certificate of attendance for five days at a county institute, or an excuse from attending the same signed by the Board of Examiners, plainly and openly violate the law. I trust that you will see to it that careful attention is paid to this matter, and that you will allow no violations of the law.

Sincerely yours,
J. R. TROTTER.

P. S. Your institute supplies will be sent in a few days.

Brother and Sister Hurt.

Last Wednesday two of William Duncan's children met with serious accidents. Miss Lena Duncan, a young lady of more than ordinary beauty was staying with her brother in law, Enock McNeill, who lives on C. E. Beard's place on Williams River. There was a fire in the fire-place, and the young lady feeling faint reached for a bottle of medicine on the mantel-shelf. She fainted and fell in the fire and was deeply burned. It is feared that the burns will permanently disfigure her.

On the same day Colbert Duncan, who was working with the engineering corps at Uriah Bird's place on the river, received a serious wound from an axe. He had sunk a double bitted axe into a log and then stumbled and fell on it. He was removed to Mrs Rachel Gibson's where he now is. The axe made an ugly wound in his hip penetrating nearly to the kidneys. He is doing well and will recover.

The Signs of the Times.

The work of excavation of the roadbed of the new railroad has begun. This is supposed to be the critical time in railroad building. When they begin to throw dirt the Rubicon is past. Years ago the mere surveying of a railroad was sufficient to rouse people's hopes of a railroad. So many surveys were made that it came to pass that no attention was paid to the presence of the engineers.

They said such surveys would only verify the belief that no railroad could be built into the county. The folks shook their heads and muttered vaguely to wait until they commenced to purchase the right of way.

The time came when the railroad was paying out thousands for the right of way, and then the engineers commenced surveying the Knapp's Creek route and hopes grew fainter than ever. The dyspeptics argued that the C. & O. was buying up the right of way to prevent any other company building on the route.

Then said the people, you will have to wait until they begin to throw dirt, and that time has come now. But still a large number are not happy. They point out the number of roads that have failed even after the road bed had been built for miles, and on which the grass now grows.

One pessimist maintains that no work has been done on the new railroad. A speculator has been buying up army mules and is summing them on the Caldwell farms and is scratching a little dirt to show buyers how they work.

These same people say that the pulp mill is not going to be built at Covington. They see as through a glass darkly.

She has been a devout Christian for a number of years. Two sons and three daughters survive her. A large number of her white and colored friends assembled at the grave to pay their last respects. She was one of the first settlers here and her husband donated this graveyard for the benefit of the community. This place was named Brownsburg in memory of these two deceased friends.

A Good Family Medicine.

They are mild in action, splendid in effect, besides being pleasant to take and requiring one only at a dose. To all who are unable to pay large doctor's bills I would say, always keep a box of Ramon's Liver Pills in the house to use in case of necessity.

"A good Female School is a public blessing, and among many noble institutions I do not know a better one than the one presided over by Rev R. L. Telford at Lewisburg, W. Va.
